Notes:

- Reiterating this – if you are not here by 9:20am, you will receive half-pay for the day.
- If you are not here by 10:40am, you will receive no pay for the day.
- Often, we will leave right after breakfast for tours, off-site workshops, etc. If you are not here by 9:20am, you will be left behind and responsible for getting to our location on your own. We will not have time to wait for you in order to make our scheduled appointment times.
- Lunches for the most part will be served here on site. However, most Fridays (and a few times during the week) we will be on the road and eating at restaurants but always with healthy, vegetarian, vegan, gluten-free, peanut-free options.
- There is a student with peanut allergies this year. No foods with peanuts will be served and no foods with peanuts will be allowed in the classroom.
- Often sessions will be combined and breaks flexed for tours, workshops, etc. off-site but lunch will consistently be at noon to keep us consistent and on-track.

YAP roles compared to High School roles:

Todd Morgan – YAP Instructor – think of him as your teacher. He’s here to provide you with knowledge, help you practice the skills you are learning, motivate you to reach your goals, and clarify what you still do not understand. He’s the mentor you should never want to disappoint.

Crystal Jensen – YAP Case Manager – think of her as your guidance counselor. Go to her when you need help with life stuff, like if things are not going well, you need help with transportation or stuff going on at home that you need someone to talk about because it’s getting in the way of your summer. She’s not your fixer though. BUT, she’ll help you learn how to fix it yourself.

Hao Sun and Brycen Smith – Program Assistants – think of them as paraeducators and school administrative assistants. They are here to help in the classroom to support Todd with activities and learning goals, and they are also here to help keep everything is running smoothly every day. They are the behind-the-scenes heroes, and you should treat them as such.

Daniel Ruiz – YAP Supervisor – think of him as your Assistant Principal. If there is a conflict or if you are causing a disruption, you will be sent to “Dan’s office.” He’ll also show up in the classroom for morning check-ins and observations, and when he’s there you’ll want to try to impress him with your discipline and knowledge. Be ready, because he might pull you aside to talk about how you’re doing in the program and what your goals are.

Tania Siler – Marysville Site Manager – think of her as the Principal. Like your high school principal, she is the face of our program to the public and makes sure Dan is doing his job. Also like your own busy principal, you will probably not see much of her UNLESS there is something MAJOR that has happened that needs to be handled. (If you see the principal at any time, it is recommended that you immediately be silent and freeze.)
